THREATS

When visiting Mexico you should be vigilant at all times. Crime and violence present themselves as serious problems in Mexico. It is common for violence, sexual offences and muggings to occur on public transport, especially when taking transport routes that run along secluded or remote roads and areas and at night.

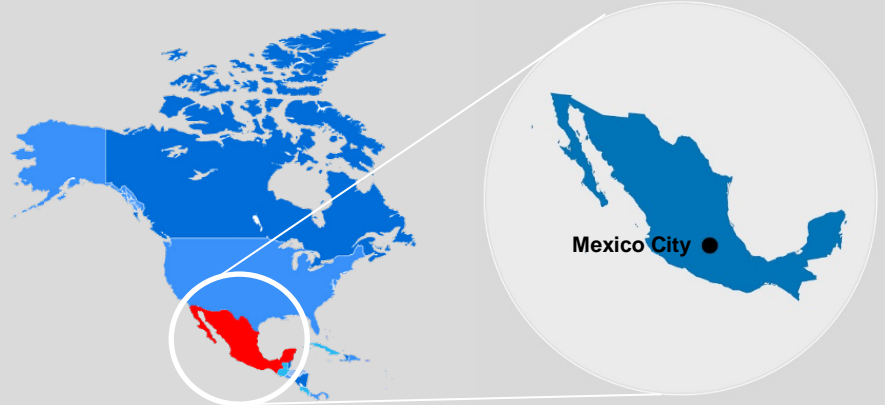

When travelling to/in the Mexico, there is high threat of:

- Terrorism
- Kidnapping
- Natural Disasters (hurricanes, earthquakes & volcanoes)

Street crime such a pick-pocketing, mugging after using cashpoints, robbing by unlicensed cab drivers, criminals posing as police officers and being approached by scam artists is common.

Express kidnapping is known to occur in urban areas.

Refer to your own government or embassy for further information applicable to you.

Due to the present threats in Mexico, it is widely recommended that you do not travel to this country without sufficient Travel Insurance. Always check your Travel Insurance policy will cover you for high risk locations.
